FURNITURE is stronger, cheaper, with simple maths

SCIENTISTS of the Furniture Development Council have found a method of making cabinet furniture—such as wardrobes, chests of drawers and cupboards—more rigid, which may save a manufacturer up to 10 per cent of the timber he now uses—or produce a sturdier piece for the same price.

THESE are the clothes making news today— and the big surprise is that they're as English as roast beef. These are the first pictures of a victory, winners of the most successful assault launched on France since D Day.

It is more than three weeks since the Incorporated Society of London Fashion Designers braved the barbs of the French Press to show the cream of their collections to the fushion buyers of the world in Paris.

It was one of those mistimed, mismanaged and totally magnificent gestures which the English occasionally manage to pull off. The result: a sudden unexpected Transatlantic vogue for Le Style Anglais.

Hardy Amies, president of the society, told me: American stores, "We've had a fantastic reception.

What are they so wild about, normally hard-hearted arbiters of American taste? they have gone over-for the kind of clothes we've been wearing with very slight variation for years.

THEY LOVE what they call our "swanky" tailored suits, for they claim that no one in the world understands the cut and hang of fabric better than the English tailor.

THEY LOVE our full-length, really formal evening dresses.

THEY LOVE the simplicity of our day dresses and the knowledge that any one of them is already wearable fashion—no business about adaptations here, THEY LOVE our Britishmade fabrics-the fine silk and wool mixtures.

Nothing extreme, fashions we've taken for granted for years. A prophet is not without honour save in his own . . . the same seems to apply to a designer.

Squaw Valley, Feb. 25. Sweden's scrappy hockey team turned in one of the big upsets of the Winter Olympics today by battling Russia's defending champions to A 2-2 tie in the second round of the Olympic icehockey tournament.

The Swedes, who had been drubbed 6-3 by the United States in the first round, had the crowd of 7,000 in Blyth Arona in an uproar as they battled the heavily-favoured Soviet puck-chasers to the finish. After two scoreless periods, Sweden's Nils Nilsson broke the deadlock only to have Russia
